Picks of the Week

This week's picks bring a French accent to the Arizona desert, a historic look at Jerusalem through music, and an accordion virtuoso from Argentina.

There is more to Argentina than tango. Accordionist Chango Spasiuk is a master of chamamé, a rhythm that mixes the local native Guarani with the Spanish guitar and the European accordion. His new album is called Pynandi, Los Descalzos [Amazon] — or the barefoot. It's a tribute to his country's impoverished rural population that can sound a little melancholic and sad. But then — it all ends in joy and dancing.—picked by Gisele Regatao
